

(1) The first group of results shows that the proposed method can effectively reduce the number of iterations required for convergence. For example, in the case of the  $10 \times 10$  matrix, the number of iterations is reduced from 100 to 50. This is a significant improvement in efficiency.

5 networking performance statistics.